

LAURIE MAUDLIN

Laurie Maudlin is President of APPIAN, an Indianapolis based government relations firm that specializes in infrastructure funding and policy. She provides guidance and support for highway, water, and multi-modal projects, and has been involved in setting policies for all infrastructure issues.

During her years of transportation experience, she has been part of the lead team on several successful lobbying fronts, including the passage of HB1002 in 2017, providing one of the most substantial road funding packages in the country; the passage of Major Moves in 2005; and the passage of several federal highway reauthorization bills that provided funding increases for Indiana.

Ms. Maudlin also works directly with numerous local highway agencies and road coalition groups to obtain funding for their critical infrastructure investments.

Before starting APPIAN in 2007, she worked as part of the transportation and infrastructure policy team for Ice Miller, LLP, and in the public sector, where she served as the Deputy Commissioner for Federal and State Affairs for the Indiana Department of Transportation.

Ms. Maudlin received her Masters of Public Administration from the University of Kentucky. She earned her Bachelor of Arts in political science from Hanover College in Hanover, Indian
